

Catarina Felone

The very elderly Signora Catarina Felone, 78, is a pious and nervous Italian woman who was once well-off but has fallen on hard times. Regardless of having had to sell off her valuables in order to keep her home, Felone has pride to spare. A retired music teacher, she appreciates the classic things and is old fashioned in that regard.

Moebius - Signora Felone

Voice: Italian accent, elderly, she expects to be treated with a certain polite decorum, and appreciates flattery. She's very nervous about a murder having taken place right outside her home, but calms down when treated well.

SAMPLE DIALOGUE:

MALACHI: I couldn't help noticing that your home is in poor condition.

FELONE: Young man, I do not see how that is any of your business!

MALACHI: I just hate to see such a classic old property in disrepair. Its nothing personal.

FELONE: It is personal to me! You should learn some manners, Signore.

MALACHI: Signora Felone, I was so... struck by your elegance during our earlier conversation. I saw this in a shop today and for some reason had the idea that it must be worn by you and no other.

FELONE: Oh, Signore! But how could you have known? I had a similar necklace that I wore for many years but recently... well, I was forced to part with it. I shouldn't accept it but... it has been years since I've received tokens from such a handsome young man. How can I refuse? Thank you.

MALACHI: It's my pleasure.

MALACHI: I'm sorry to trouble you with a distressing subject, Signora, but may I ask you about the night of the murder?

FELONE: (nervous) Oh. I really don't want to talk about that. I'm... frightened.

MALACHI: That's quite understandable. But I'm not the police and this information is not for the courts. It will stay between you and I.

FELONE: Well...

MALACHI: Did you see their faces?

FELONE: No! Their heads, their faces, they were covered in black fabric, as if they were in a play. I swear!

FELONE: Oh, perhaps I've been foolish. I should have stayed quiet. I... I must go. Thank you for the necklace.

MALACHI: Signora.
