Gabriella Spira

The 24-year-old dancer was Bianca's best friend and confidant. Wealthy and a socialite like her friend, Gabriella is vain and self-absorbed, but very distressed by her friend's murder. It's shaken her privileged & protected world up quite a bit.

Moebius - Gabriella Spira

VOICE: Italian accent, Gabriella is used to being admired and paid attention to—if she weren't in such distress, she'd probably flirt with Malachi.

SAMPLE DIALOGUE:

MALACHI: Tell me about Bianca's family.

GABRIELLA: (bragging) She came from a very important family. Her father is Antonio Savoy. Her mother's father… he was a highly respected magistrate in Venice. Not just anyone can be friends with someone like that. Her family protected Bianca to a great degree. Of course, they were very fond of me.

MALACHI: Did you say Bianca was pregnant when she died?

GABRIELLA: (worried) You didn't know? Oh, now I…. I don't know if the family would approve of my saying so.

MALACHI: It's quite alright. I won't tell anyone. How far along was she?

GABRIELLA: About three months. The tests said it was a girl. She was so excited.

GABRIELLA: (sobs genuinely) Oh, God. I'm sorry. Sometimes it strikes me all over again.

MALACHI: I apologize for upsetting you.

MALACHI: Anything specific about Bianca's looks that she didn't like?

GABRIELLA: (hedging) Oh, I don't know… You know how women are. The slightest flaw… I really don't think Bianca would wish me to speak of it.

GABRIELLA: But I can tell you this. If she'd had more confidence, Bianca could have gone far, perhaps become wife of the prime minister one day. But as it was… she was content to marry Dante and stay in Venice.